

Celebrating Selmas wedding day, underwater.

Splash Info

Amanda Ross is a skilled photographer, jewelry artisan, and graphic designer. She began her fascination with underwater photography as a child at her neighborhood pool. Her technique and artistry grew over time and she has developed a collection of underwater photography. Amanda enjoys working with people who want to be photographed underwater and considers the resulting photographs to be artwork based on collaboration between artist and subject. She spends considerable time reviewing the photographs after the session, selecting the final images, and preparing them for final presentation.
